UNIONS DECLINE TO BACK TROLLEYMEN
There will be no sympathetic strike of the union labor in New London in an effort to settle the strike of the motormen and conductors of the Shore Line Electric railway company who have been on a strike over two months because the company refused to grant their demands for an increase in wages. This was decided at a meeting of the Central Labor union in New London Tuesday night when a vote of the delegates assembled from the various unions voted 14 to 8 not to enter in to a general strike in sympathy with the trolley employees. The strike situation was debated at considerable length by the delegates, both sides of the situation being presented, after which the vote which does away with the idea of a sympathetic strike, was taken.
